DIAC receives students from the American University of Sharjah

On 10 October 2004, students from the Business Administration faculty of the American University of Sharjah (AUS) visited the Dubai International Arbitration Centre (DIAC). The visit was part of their business law module, and the students explored how useful arbitration could be as a suitable means to resolving commercial disputes in the business world.

During their visit, the students attended a brief presentation by Dr. Hussam Al Talhuni, director of DIAC and his legal assistant Beema Jamal. The former spoke about the various services and facilities offered at DIAC. Dr. Al Talhuni also gave brief explanations about the different aspects of arbitration, such as online disputes and the public policy stance towards enforcing arbitration awards. During the presentation, there were several questions from the students on a variety of issues pertaining to arbitration within the UAE and the Centre.

Meeting Business Needs in the Middle East

The Conference will be of interest to all those involved in commercial dispute resolution
- November 23 -24, 2004

Co-hosted by the Dubai International Arbitration Centre, the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators and the ICC International Court of Arbitration.

This truly international event brings together leading speakers from around the world [(including practitioners and business users of arbitration and Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR)]. Delegates will learn about, and discuss how, effective dispute resolution contributes to business confidence, growth and investment in the region.

The conference will attract international attendees and is of particular importance to businesses with existing or potential commercial interests in the region and their professional advisors, dispute resolution practitioners, academics and policy makers.

A certificate of attendance for Continuing Professional Development (CPD) purposes will be provided to all delegates for presentation to national bar associations or law societies if applicable. Simultaneous translation English/Arabic/English is available for the conference working sessions.
