Introductory Training Course on International Commercial Arbitration for Professionals

7th – 10th November 2006

DIAC, in conjunction with King's College of London, will be offering a Four-Day Introductory Training Course on International Commercial Arbitration for professionals who are interested in learning about this important method of dispute resolution. The training courses will prove to be the first of their kind in Dubai, addressing the need to develop more qualified dispute resolution specialists in the region. The courses will coincide with our November conference and will draw together professionals from diverse sectors seeking to increase their Arbitration Skills and Knowledge. The programme will be lead by top instructors from King's College and from the DIAC Board of Trustees. Space will be limited to ensure the maximum learning potential for participants so early registration is encouraged. DIAC Members will have priority for registration. Check the DIAC website for announcements and online registration information : www.diac.ae
